VI. Board Updates

County Executive Howard Lazarus provided an update on the health department and the process for selecting the county health director. The Board of Health will virtually interview six to eight candidates that have been vetted by the recruiting firm and hold in-person interviews with two to three finalists. It is anticipated that the new director will be selected early- to mid-August.

Ms. Gorenflo provided an update on the application to the state health department for Act 315 funds. She noted that five “think tanks” have been held to date on the topics of health equity, immigrant health, maternal and child health, communicable disease, and chronic disease. Common themes across all think tanks include the following:

- the importance of ensuring programs and services are designed to reflect cultural competence and racial justice;
- the need to develop trust with the community at the very outset;
- connection to services/case management as a critical role for the health department; and
- setting long-term goals for all grants to ensure that the programs and services they supported are sustained over time.

Input from think tanks will be reflected in the Act 315 application. Board members requested that additional outreach be conducted to enhance inclusivity in the think tanks.

An application outline has been developed and will be drafted with ongoing guidance from the state health department, with an anticipated submission date of November 2021.

Ms. Gorenflo described work to date and future plans for the transition of environmental health inspections from the municipalities to the county health department (see attached slides). Board members emphasized the importance of ongoing communications with municipalities and residents about the transition and the positive implications of this change.
